

There are many things to consider when choosing a dance studio. Below are a few things you should ask during your search.

How many students are in each class?

At Center Stage our priority is providing a top-notch arts education with the ability to be able to provide individualized attention for each child by keeping class sizes small.

What credentials do your teachers have?

Our highly qualified faculty is what sets Center Stage apart from the rest. All of our instructors have an arts and education background and have higher education in dance and/or professional experience and participate in continuing professional development. Our instructor's credentials include degrees in Dance, Music and Theatre, former Radio City Rockettes, College Professors, principal dancer with National Ballet of Guatemala, Certificates in Ballet Teaching Studies from the Royal Academy of Dance and judges for National dance competitions.

What is the teaching style? What is the goal for students?

Center Stage's teaching is focused on inclusiveness and geared towards the recreational and intensive dancer. Our goal is to provide a safe and encouraging environment where people of all ages and skill levels can explore their creativity through dance and the performing arts. In addition, we help individuals build their confidence and reach their fitness goals. We offer a wide range of dance, performing arts and fitness classes with various levels of commitment to suit your needs.

How do you let parents know how students are progressing?

We believe that open communication between the parents and Center Stage staff is crucial to your child's success. Center Stage provides opportunities for families and friends to come observe classes during the year. Students receive Progress Reports bi-annually to communicate their progress in classes. In the spring, a "class recommendation" form is distributed to each family with recommendations on which classes would best fit their student for the following year. The staff at Center Stage try their best to help each and every student dance to their fullest potential.

What do people get for the price?

Students of Center Stage get quality performing arts education from professionals in the field. We also offer a safe environment and promote positive interactions. Extra bonuses we offer are a FREE T-Shirt for Everyone Who Registers, Wide Variety of Class Options, a Tumbling Program, Private Music Lessons, Performance Opportunities, Family Events, Center Stage Dance Company and Assistant Teacher Training Program.
